

Exercise 7: Survival Course 101

Source: <https://getsling.com/blog/leadership-activities/>

Goal:

Engage in critical thinking, teamwork, and problem-solving

Group Size:

Two-three teams

Time:

30 minutes – 1 hour

Process:

- Divide the participants into two-three teams and present them with a survival situation: a plane crash, a shipwreck, lost in the desert. Then present them with a list of items that might be useful in that situation.
- Challenge the groups to choose five items that will help them survive. (Make a list of items they can choose from) After the teams' finish picking their items, ask them to justify their selections and how they would use those things to overcome their given circumstance.
- Add in a series/scene of the survival situation... so scene one "plane crash" ... "scene two plane crashed in the ocean and you are drifting to land" ... "there is no food on the island" ... etc
- If a certain group doesn't have a certain item to get past the scene, they "die", but can still participate in the ELP by solving a riddle or explaining another way they can survive.
- The goal is to try to make it through all the scenes in the survival situation series.
- This leadership activity stimulates critical, creative, and strategic thinking as well as problem-solving skills that can be useful in your business.
